

It's Mine! by Ophelia Braddock

Once upon a time in a sunny field of flowers and the pinkish blueish sky lived a herd of horses. They were beautiful. They were brown and gray and tan. The sun was about to set, though the thing is that they do not get along. They always fight because of carrots. And most of all they get hurt when they fight. They are rude and selfish.

One time there was a carrot in the middle of the grass. Every horse saw it so they all ran but they all bumped heads and they got hurt. One horse didn't even see it until all of the other horses were on the ground. So he decided to take it. Then one horse said, "It is mine!"

One day one of the horses had a carrot. The other horse said, "Can I have some carrot?" "Okay." And then they shared and all of the horses were happy and they weren't getting hurt.
