

The Day is a Rainbow by Helene Norcross

Excited for the day,
So happy, I'm red.

My friend is coloring with orange.

I notice the connecting from red to orange.

I sit down in my chair,
as sour as a yellow lemon.
My friend has just yelled at me.

It is time for math. My math book is green.

After I'm finished,
I rush to the door.
It's time for lunch.
Oh great galore!

I suck up my juice box
and then something happens.
My friend is whispering,
I wonder what she's saying?

Then she looks up.
She laughs and points.
I feel so blue. What did I do?!

At the end of the day,
my friend says he likes my dress. I'm embarrassed.
I think I turned purple.

The day has been a rainbow!
